

David Bradley, a scientist in the OMEGA Experimental Group, is shown testing the microchannel-plate-intensified grating spectrograph (McPIGS) using a sliding spark plasma discharge source. The source, which emits line radiation extending from $\sim 50 \text{ \AA}$ through to the visible, is used for calibrating a number of UV and soft x-ray diagnostics.