

Stephen Noyes, Senior Technical Associate, is shown monitoring solution temperature during production of polystyrene shells made by the microencapsulation process. Highly uniform polymer shells necessary for high-density implosions are produced by this method.