

Jerry Drumheller operates the target fabrication group's ion beam sputtering system. This is the first use of this device for depositing high-Z fusion target pusher layers. The results of a series of experiments using this method are reported in this issue.