

Undergraduate optics student Scott Gilman is loading samples into a high-precision thermal comparator apparatus. This instrument is used to measure the thermal conductivity in dielectric thin films.