

David Smith, an engineer in the high-repetition-rate, solid-state sources group, has been responsible for a large part of the design and development of the Cr:Nd:GSGG active mirror, which he is shown adjusting. The high-repetition-rate sources group is currently developing slab and active-mirror geometry amplifiers in both glass and crystalline media.